Speech 128 – INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION

The College of Marin Catalog describes Speech 128 as follows:

This is a course designed to familiarize students with the theory and the process of effectively communicating with people different from themselves in terms of ethnicity, culture, race, and language use. The specific focus of this course will be to develop the student’s ability to recognize, acknowledge and better understand the uniqueness of people from European-American, African-American, Asian-American and Latino-American cultures through comparison and contrast of their respective communication behaviors. Students will study theories from intercultural and intergroup communication as they relate to intercultural communication, will read from an intercultural anthology and a multicultural history text. Through lectures, discussions, readings, viewing films on video, group presentations, written and oral assignments, students will learn the skills necessary to achieve positive outcomes when communicating with others who are perceived as being culturally, ethnically or racially different than they.  (CSU/UC)
AA/AS Areas C or E & G, CSU Area D1, IGETC Area 3B

Please note the above-mentioned course fulfills the following requirements at the institutions listed below:

COLLEGE OF MARIN

- Fulfills a General Education Humanities requirement for the College of Marin Associate degree.
- Fulfills the Communication and Analytical Thinking requirement.
- May be taken EITHER to fulfill requirement for General Education Humanities OR Communication and Analytical Thinking requirement, but not both requirements.
- Fulfills requirement for the AA degree in Speech at the College of Marin by being one of the speech classes that may be selected to complete the speech degree.
- Fulfills the Registered Nursing Program communication skills requirement.
- Fulfills Cross Cultural Studies requirement.
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

- Will transfer for elective credit to the University of California
- Fulfills a requirement in Area 3 - Arts and Humanities, Group B, Humanities.
- Fulfills the American Cultures requirement at U.C. Berkeley.

CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY

- Will transfer for elective credit to California State University.
- Fulfills General Education requirement to California State University in Area D, Social, Political and Economic Institutions and Behavior and Their Historical Background, Group 1, Social Institutions and Behavior.