

COLLEGE OF MARIN

ART

Art is the study of visual forms as a means of expression. Art will enrich a student's experience of the world, and encourage the student to draw upon creative resources. An education in art can lead to many professional and vocational careers. With so many mediums, there are numerous options for the student who chooses to pursue art.

Typical Coursework associated with the study of Art

Programs in art are designed to develop knowledge and skills in areas such as painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics, weaving, art history, and art therapy. These programs are designed to prepare students for careers in art, education, business, industry, and museum and gallery management. Graphics design programs prepare students for lay-out or paste-up work in advertising agencies, art services, department stores, or publishing houses. Technical illustration training combines artistic and technical skills as they are used in technical magazines or trade manuals.
