

COLLEGE OF MARIN

BUSINESS

Business Management and Administration programs are designed to prepare people to plan, organize, and control the activities of people and other resources to achieve the objectives of an organization. Programs usually emphasize theories and practices in the operation of businesses in private industry; however, some offer options in Public Administration.

Typical Coursework associated with the study of Business

A degree in Business provides a thorough grounding in theories and principles of accounting, finance, marketing, economics, statistics, and decision making. You will also learn to cope with change, ever-emerging technologies, and the increased Globalization of business. A business major should expect to work in small groups and to do lots of problem solving. Expect some theory and a lot of number crunching, as much of your subject matter will be math related.
