

HISTORY

History is the study of the past. An evolving record of human emotions, aspirations, successes and failures. History recounts the goals, fears, interests and prejudices of people in the past and the impact of their thoughts and actions on the people of today and tomorrow.

Typical Coursework associated with the study of History

The study of the past broadens our perspective and allows us to discover the essential elements of human existence. History majors will examine and attempt to interpret all aspects of human life and its recorded expressions. By doing so a variety of skills are developed which may be valuable in any different types of occupations. Critical thinking, organization of ideas, supporting documentation, writing, decision making, examining evidence, seeing relationships between factors and explaining ideas are all skills learned through the study of history.
