Designed for the Working Adult

Featuring monthly Saturday meetings and weekly on-line seminars

The Liberal Studies Degree Completion Program offers an alternative route to a Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies for working adults who have completed lower-division coursework and whose schedules do not permit them to attend regular campus classes. Instruction is organized around one full Saturday seminar per month on campus, combined with weekly online seminars and ongoing reading and writing assignments.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS:

- Thematic interdisciplinary courses
- Seminar-based format
- Participation in a learning community
- Field-based and experiential learning
- Global perspectives
- Focus on the world of the future
- Development of written and oral communication skills

APPLICATIONS:

Applications are accepted on a first-come basis from October 1 through March 31 for entrance to the program the following Fall semester.

ACADEMIC CONTENT:

The major in Liberal Studies consists of 40 units comprised of four 10-unit interdisciplinary courses taken one per semester. The are four interdisciplinary core courses:

IDENTITY AND SOCIETY looks at the changing self, drawing from psychological and sociological theory, as well as from literature, art & biology.

WORK & THE GLOBAL FUTURE explores topics such as the global economy and its impact on societies around the world.

TECHNOLOGY & THE ENVIRONMENT concentrate on some of the major environmental issues facing us: nature’s capacity for regeneration; the relationship between the human environment, the physical environment; sustainability; and economic and political aspects of environmental issue.

SENIOR PROJECT allows you to combine your individual interests and goals with one or more themes from the core courses.
